Providing hands-on care and perform routine tasks under the supervision of nursing and medical staff. Specific tasks vary, with aides handling many aspects of a patient's care. They often help patients to eat, dress, and bathe. They also answer calls for help, deliver messages, serve meals, make beds, and tidy up rooms. Aides sometimes are responsible for taking a patient's temperature, pulse rate, respiration rate, or blood pressure. They also may help provide care to patients by helping them get out of bed and walk, escorting them to operating and examining rooms, or providing skin care. Some aides help other medical staff by setting up equipment, storing and moving supplies, and assisting with some procedures. Aides also observe patients' physical, mental, and emotional conditions and report any change to the nursing or medical staff.

Nursing aides employed in nursing care facilities often are the principal caregivers and have more contact with residents than do other members of the staff. Because some residents may stay in a nursing care facility for months or even years, aides develop positive, caring relationships with their patients. Applicants must have an active licensure, experience preferred. Good attendance is mandatory, must have a flexible schedule, nights, weekends, and holidays are required for this position.

1266115	RN	3	40.00	N/A		Acushnet KFRAN 1/11/2012

Registered nurses (RNs), regardless of specialty or work setting, treat patients, educate patients and the public about various medical conditions, and provide advice and emotional support to patients' family members. RNs record patients' medical histories and symptoms, help perform diagnostic tests and analyze results, operate medical machinery, administer treatment and medications, and help with patient follow-up and rehabilitation.

RNs teach patients and their families how to manage their illnesses or injuries, explaining post-treatment home care needs; diet, nutrition, and exercise programs; and self-administration of medication and physical therapy. Some RNs may work to promote general health by educating the public on warning signs and symptoms of disease. RNs also might run general health screening or immunization clinics, blood drives, and public seminars on various conditions.

When caring for patients, RNs establish a care plan or contribute to an existing plan. Plans may include numerous activities, such as administering medication, including careful checking of dosages and avoiding interactions; starting, maintaining, and discontinuing intravenous (IV) lines for fluid, medication, blood, and blood products; administering therapies and treatments; observing the patient and recording those observations; and consulting with physicians and other healthcare clinicians. Some RNs provide direction to licensed practical nurses and nursing aides regarding patient care. (See the statements on licensed practical and licensed vocational nurses; nursing and psychiatric aides; and home health aides elsewhere in the Handbook). RNs with advanced educational preparation and training may perform diagnostic and therapeutic procedures and may have prescriptive authority.

Specific work responsibilities will vary from one RN to the next. An RN's duties and title are often determined by their work setting or patient population served. RNs can specialize in one or more areas of patient care. There generally are four ways to specialize. RNs may work a particular setting or type of treatment, such as perioperative nurses, who work in operating rooms and assist surgeons. RNs may specialize in specific health conditions, as do diabetes management nurses, who assist patients to manage diabetes. Other RNs specialize in working with one or more organs or body system types, such as dermatology nurses, who work with patients who have skin disorders. RNs may also specialize with a well-defined population, such as geriatric nurses, who work with the elderly. Some RNs may combine specialties. For example, pediatric oncology nurses deal with children and adolescents who have cancer. The opportunities for specialization in registered nursing are extensive and are often determined on the job. This position requires active licensure. No experience necessary. Second and third shift availability. Salary will be discussed upon hire.

LPNs measure and record patients' vital signs such as height, weight, temperature, blood pressure, pulse, and respiration. They also prepare and give injections and enemas, monitor catheters, dress wounds, and give alcohol rubs and massages. To help keep patients comfortable, they assist with bathing, dressing, and personal hygiene, moving in bed, standing, and walking. They might also feed patients who need help eating. Experienced LPNs may supervise nursing assistants and aides.

As part of their work, LPNs collect samples for testing, perform routine laboratory tests, and record food and fluid intake and output. They clean and monitor medical equipment. Sometimes, they help physicians and registered nurses perform tests and procedures. Some LPNs help to deliver, care for, and feed patients.

LPNs also monitor their patients and report adverse reactions to medications or treatments. LPNs gather information from patients, including their health history and how they are currently feeling. They may use this information to complete insurance forms, pre-authorizations, and referrals, and they share information with registered nurses and doctors to help determine the best course of care for a patient. LPNs often teach family members how to care for a relative or teach patients about good health habits.

Most LPNs are generalists and will work in any area of healthcare. Must have experience, and active licensure to apply for this position. Must have basic computer knowledge, for data input. Salary will be discussed upon hire. Second and third shift availability.

Teaching Fellow, New Bedford, MA Location: Massachusetts campuses Job Code: 12TFMA2# of openings: 5 Previous Applicants: Email: Password: If you do not remember your password click here.&#x26amp;#x26amp; Back to Search Results New Search Description 2012-2014 NATIONAL TEACHING FELLOWSHIP Citizen Schools seeks a strong, diverse, talented cohort of candidates to join its National Teaching Fellowship. Citizen Schools is accepting applications for program sites in California, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, and Texas. The National Teaching Fellowship is a unique, competitive, two-year professional and leadership development program. The Fellowship is a paid service program that offers a diverse range of experiences to people of varied backgrounds who have high potential as educators. Teaching Fellows (TFs) are essential to the success of the Citizen Schools&#x201d; program. These engaging, dedicated, and caring adults work closely with urban middle-school students and their families to help transform lives. Each TF leads a group of approximately 12-16 students, supporting their academic achievement through academic support and by facilitating hands-on, learning activities led by community volunteers. The Citizen Schools&#x201d; program offers TFs the opportunity to engage students in a diverse range of educational experiences and provides leadership development support &#x2014; with the ultimate goal of preparing students for high school success, and enhanced college and career access. THE NATIONAL TEACHING FELLOWSHIP Fellows build strong relationships with their students, engage weekly with families and teachers, and serve as mentors and role-models for middle school students. They have an impact on students by helping them develop leadership and teamwork skills, and confidence; supporting their students&#x201d; belief and preparedness in college and career readiness. Fellows communicate regularly with teachers, families, and Citizen Teachers to promote middle school achievement, college and career access. Fellows help students develop skills to be more successful in the classroom. They guide students through curricula designed to increase their Math and English skills, proficiency in test-taking, note-taking and organizational skills, support homework completion, and academic skills building. Fellows build a culture of achievement with their team and in the school campus and are responsible for promoting student grade gains. Fellows support and coach Citizen Teachers -- community volunteers who share their professional skills or personal interests with students through ten-week hands-on learning projects called apprenticeships. Fellows help Citizen Teachers produce engaging lesson plans, provide academic support, manage student behavior, and support preparation for WOW!s- authentic products, performances, or presentations created by students. Fellows intern with Citizen Schools, a partner school, or other community organization. Through a morning partnership, Fellows build their professional skills in a nonprofit or school environment, directly impacting civic engagement, curriculum development, or program management. NATIONAL TEACHING FELLOW QUALIFICATIONS Successful applicants will possess a range of attributes, including:&#x2022; Knowledge of and commitment to the Citizen Schools&#x201d; mission&#x2022; Demonstrated ability to engage children in groups and a commitment to student achievement&#x2022; Academic skills &#x2014; proficiency in middle school math and English&#x2022; Coaching skills and ability to provide and receive constructive feedback&#x2022; Commitment to teamwork and collaboration with diverse groups of people&#x2022; Desire to work with middle schools students and their families in an inner-city environment&#x2022; Ability to build relationships and influence students, colleagues, and community members&#x2022; Capacity for youth development and community building skills&#x2022; Strong professional skills, including teamwork,

In 1996 St. Luke's merged with Charlton Memorial in Fall River and Tobey Hospital in Wareham to form Southcoast Health System, which now has dozens of ancillary facilities throughout the region, including an assisted living facility, home health care and hospice, a wellness center and numerous outpatient medical services. Visit: www.Southcoast.org Southcoast Hospitals specialties include Cardiac, Brain/Spine and Bariatric Surgery. Southcoast meets the criteria established by Blue Cross / Blue Shield Association for participation in the Blue Distinction Centers for Cardiac Care. Southcoast has also been designated as a Center of Excellence by the American Society for Bariatric Surgery. St. Luke's offers a wide range of inpatient medical and surgical services, with particular expertise in neurosurgery, cardiology and general surgery. Patients have access to sophisticated diagnostic testing, including CT, MRI and nuclear cardiology. Rehabilitation services are available on site and at satellite locations. As part of Southcoast Hospitals Group, St. Luke's offers a wide range of free community health education and wellness programs, which includes a mobile health van. Location Southcoast Hospitals Group is located along the southeastern coastline of Massachusetts. Our three sites - Charlton Memorial in Fall River, St. Luke's in New Bedford and Tobey in Wareham - serve communities that feature quaint villages, ocean waters and rural landscapes that give New England its colonial charm. Within easy driving distance lie some of the greatest attractions of the region - the rugged beaches of Cape Cod, Newport's gilded mansions, skiing attractions in New Hampshire and Vermont and the rich cultural diversity of Boston and Providence. The mountains of New Hampshire and Vermont lie just three to five hours to the north
